

GRADUATE PROFILE

Our graduates evolve and demonstrate their ability to communicate with an increasingly diverse global community and in a multitude of manners.

They learn to actively listen, guide group discussions, participate in conflict resolution, use emotional intelligence, express feelings and needs, provide feedback, build their confidence in speaking publicly.

Our graduates experience working with a wide variety of teams and people and flourish their leadership skills.

They are responsible for their work, have strategies to make a common decision, share ideas effectively, follow and guide a process.

Our graduates are able to identify and address a problem, design options, make a decision and execute a solution.

They listen and observe, formulate questions, collect relevant information, make decisions, define challenges, creatively explore all possible and impossible ideas, find clever, yet efficient, solutions.

Our graduates are aware of themselves, engaged in the immediate world around them and mindful of those that exist around them.

They are aware of their strengths and weaknesses, conduct themselves in a professional manner, respect other people, are willing to help and challenge intolerance.

Our graduates understand and accept that learning is a life-long process. They study in an atmosphere that promotes joy and love of learning.

They learn to take notes, research concepts, record facts, scrutinize information, learn from others, make connections, formulate their own opinions and defend their thinking.

Our students use creativity as a tool to create new as well as to adapt and improve upon existing items, ideas or behaviour.

They are flexible and open-minded, follow their creativity, evaluate opinions, work with different perspectives and resources, incorporate feedback.

Our graduates develop their confidence through their many experiences and are responsible for their actions.

They learn to believe in themselves, are not afraid to make mistakes and admit when they are 'wrong'.
